The greatest biodiversity per square kilometer as the living room of a single planet

Thanks to the agreement signed between MAATE and CC35, the Ecuadorian pavilion, which had not been present since COP21 in Paris in 2015, was recovered. The One-Planet Pavilion was born with the DNA to amplify not only the voices within the country but as a space to host the voices of youth, women, indigenous communities, subnational governments, private sector and other actors that make up the 196 parties represented in the UNFCCC.
